SLEUTHS USE GUNS IN RAID FOR BOOZE

Wooster Citizens Aroused By Alleged Cowboy Tactics.

SURGE AROUND TRACTION CAR

Proprietor of Cigar Store Handcuffed and Customers Threatened by Dry Detectives Who Seize Cards, Chips and Money Belonging to Church Deacon—Make Escape and on Arrival at Cleveland Have Medina Sheriff and Deputy Arrested.

Wooster, O., Oct. 9.—Acting like cowboys from the wild and woolly west, seven detectives from Cleveland almost precipitated a riot in this peaceful little city.

The sleuths, said to have been employed by the Anti-Saloon league, came to this city through efforts of the Civic league. Four of the men, while in the cigar store of Fred Faber, suddenly flashed revolvers and, pointing them at the customers, seized decks of cards, chips and money. Faber was handcuffed before he realized what had happened. Most of the cash secured, it is said, belonged to an elder in the United Presbyterian church, and was laid on the table while he was making change to pay off one of his employes. At the same time three other detectives, armed with a search and seizure warrant, raided the restaurant owned by John Berger, but found no liquors.

The detectives had no warrant to search the Faber place, it is said.
Tom Langdon of Mt. Vernon, employed here, caused a warrant to be issued against one of the sleuths for pointing firearms in a menacing manner.

Escapes on Electric Car.

Fully 1,000 persons gathered on the public square when an officer went to arrest the man, but he got out of town on an electric car, headed for Medina. Sheriff Young and Marshal Gates of Medina were asked to capture the man and boarded the car, but the sleuth resisted and the Medina officers remained on the car till it got to Cleveland. Reaching there the detectives caused the arrest of Sheriff Young and Marshal Gates for disorderly conduct. Congressman Paul Howland furnished $200 bail each for their appearance Thursday morning.

The feeling against the detectives was bitter and it looked when the crowd surged about the car on the public square here as if there might be a tragedy like that which occurred in Newark.

TURKS DESIRE INTERVENTION SAY REPORTS

Tell Ambassadors to Get Busy
Among the Powers.

NEW LEADER OUTLINES PLANS

Fethi Bey, While En Route to Scene of Hostilities, Forecasts Result of Bombardment at Tripoli — Said
"Turks Would Offer No Resistance, but Would Retire Until Heavy Reinforcements Arrive — Says There Will Be Something Doing Then.

Constantinople, Oct. 9.—A circular which has been sent to all the Turkish ambassadors reads:

"A new situation is produced by the occupation of Tripoli; the Ottoman government will ask the intervention of the powers to obtain an immediate cessation of hostilities pending negotiations for an arrangement upon a basis which will safeguard the interests of Italy while preserving the sovereignty of Turkey." A constant interchange of visits between the porte and the German embassy is taking place.

CABLE IN COMMISSION

London Gets Latest News From Seat of War.

London, Oct. 9.—The restoration of the cable between Tripoli and Malta, which was out of commission, has enabled correspondents to get their accounts of the bombardment through, but there is little fresh news. One says that on Oct. 3 news reached the fleet that four officers who arrived on the steamer Tafna, which was stopped, with the French consul aboard, demanded to be put ashore. The admiral replied that it was impossible to let them land, as the bombardment was about to commence.

This information, in conjunction with the Paris dispatch telling of the intentions of Fethi Bey, indicates that that officer did not reach Tripoli to take command, though the plan of campaign as outlined by him to the Temps correspondent apparently is being followed.

One correspondent says the Italian gunners' aim was admirable. A few shots fired by the Turks ashore splashed into the water half way to the ships, and there was no reply from the shore batteries for 50 minutes after the first shot. Two officers who landed Oct. 4 found two great stores of ammunition at the Hamidie fort. On the morning of Oct. 5 an

Wheeling Orphanage Destroyed By Fire

Nuns Display Rare Heroism In Re-cuing Sleeping Children.

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 9.—While 250 little orphans lay sleeping at the Home of the Good Shepherd, at Ed-ginton Lane, fire broke out in the building and within a few minutes it was a roaring mass of flames.

Nuns who had charge of the home were awakened by Earl Sinclair, who was passing and discovered the fire, and within a short time these heroic women had awakened all the children and had marched them to safety.
Many became panic-stricken when they staggered into the halls, which were dense with smoke, and had it not been for the bravery of the sisters at least eight would have perished. They were found in a semiconscious condition and carried from the building.

The building burned to the ground, despite the work of the fire department. The children are being cared for by the Knights of Columbus, who have assumed charge of the situation.
The home will be rebuilt at once.
Checks and money to the amount of $1,500 were burned.

Meyer Proposes A Big Saving

Secretary Meyer to Adopt English System In Navy Yards.

Washington, Oct. 9.—Casting aside all scientific systems of navy yard management advocated in this country because he believes they involved too much detail and required serious changes in the civil service rules of employment, Secretary of the Navy Meyer will import from England a system of management in use by Vickers, Limited, at the Barrow-in-Furness ship, engine and ordnance works. This, in substance, was officially announced at the navy department. The secretary studied this system during his recent inspection of European naval works.

AMERICA LOSES THE AERIAL TROPHY

German Lieutenant Wins the Big Balloon Race.

VICTOR IS EXTREMELY MODEST

Gericke's Figures as to Distance Sailed From Kansas City Are Revised Upwards by Officials of Aero Club, Who Wire Congratulations to Point of Descent at Holcombe, Wis.
Lieutenant Lahm, One Hundred Miles Behind, Is Second.

New York, Oct. 9.—Lieutenant Hans Gericke sent a telegram to the Aero Club of America, announcing that in his German balloon Berlin II he had landed at Holcombe, in Chippewa county, in the northern part of Wisconsin, after covering a distance of 750 kilometers in the international cup race.

Everyone in the clubhouse got out pencils and there was a crowd around the map in a moment. After a lot of figuring and poring Allan R. Hawley, who won the last year's balloon race after many exciting adventures up north with August Post, straightened up and announced that we would have to hand the victory to the Germans.

According to the map they figured that the German balloonist was too modest in his figures. Seven hundred and fifty kilometers is 464 miles, but the measurements done by the club folks on the map gave the Lieutenant nearer 490 miles. But he won the race even at his own figures, for his nearest competitor was Lieutenant F. P. Lahm, who dropped down in his Buckeye at Millstone, Wis., 395 miles from Kansas City.

Everybody who had ever had anything to do with balloons felt the keenest sort of interest in the international race this year, for if the Americans had won the Aero Club of America would have kept the trophy.
This is the second victory for the Germans, as against three for Americans, since Lieutenant Lahm won in Paris in 1906. But they took it good-naturedly and sent a telegram of congratulations to Gericke at Holcombe.

New York, Oct. 9.—Independent manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, led by John W. Surbrug, have retained Samuel Untermyer to oppose the adoption of the plan of reorganization which it is expected will be laid by the American Tobacco company before the United States court here.
Mr. Untermyer has advised them that it is a matter of grace and favor whether they can be heard or not, as they are not parties to the suit.

Charles G. Gates and His Bride On Wedding Tour In Private Car

WHEN Charles G. Gates arranged to be married to Miss Florence Hop-wood of Minneapolis at the home of his bride's uncle, Robert F.
Hopwood, at Uniontown, Pa., he engaged the Rev. Dr. J. W. Legrone of Port Arthur, Tex., to perform the ceremony. There were nearly a hundred guests at the wedding, many of them having made long journeys to attend. Immediately after the wedding dinner Mr. and Mrs. Gates left on their wedding journey in Mr. Gates' private car. They went first to Port Arthur, Tex., and will make a long tour of the United States before returning to New York. The above picture was made as the newly wedded couple stood behind the car only a few minutes before their wedding journey began. This was Mr. Gates' second marriage, his first wife having divorced him fifty-three days before his second marriage. His father, John W. Gates, died recently, leaving a fortune of perhaps $30,000,000, most of which will ultimately go to his son. The young millionaire's wedding gifts to his bride included two diamond rings, a rope of pearls, a pair of diamond earrings and a diamond pin.

Losses Will Reach A Million

Wisconsin Town, Stricken by Flood, Threatened With Pestilence.

Black River Falls, Wis., Oct. 9.— Pestilence and plundering are the threatened results of the flood which swept away 59 business places in this city. The situation became such that the authorities decided to ask the governor for aid, and word was received that the Mauston and Euclair companies of the National Guard will be here at once to stop the thieving by vandals, and there will be National Guard surgeons here to prevent disease and enforce sanitary regulations.

The mayor, sheriff and other authorities made definite canvass of the city to ascertain the needs, and found the financial loss totals $1,520, 700, with still more to follow.

The flood is still so high that other buildings may tumble into the stream or will have to be rebuilt.

Rodgers In Illinois.

Joliet, Ill., Oct. 9.—Calbraith P.
Rodgers landed in the field of Daniel O'Connor, a mile from Belwood Park and midway between Lockport and this city, after flying 70 miles in 77 minutes, but only adding 33 miles to his score from New York.

Sheriff Fails to Arrest Girl For Sunday Flight.

New York, Oct. 9.—Charles DeMott, sheriff of Nassau county, J. J. Campbell, D. Drake and William Delaney, his deputies, had a long and swift but futile chase after Miss Mathilde Moisant, who defied their proclamation that no flights on Sundays would be permitted at the Nassau boulevard field.

When informed of the order Miss Moisant, who was attired for a flight, remarked: "So I'll be arrested if I fly, will I? Tune her up, Mike." Wide-eyed, the men watched the grinning Mike tune the engine, with protesting motions they saw Miss Moisant climb into her machine and, with sneaking admiration, they gasped at the realization that it took more than the sheriff of Nassau county, and of all of his big deputies to stop a young woman who had made up her mind to fly, Sunday or no Sunday.

Decided to Go Home.

After circling the field several times, Miss Moisant decided she had fooled around long enough and headed her machine for the hangar on the Moisant aviation field at Mineola.
She was pursued by the sheriff and his deputies in automobiles, who in turn were pursued by Alfred J.
Moisant.

Arrived at the field there was a general mixup, in which the fair aviator escaped in an auto driven by

TAKES TIME TO EAT AND REFUSES TO HURRY AFTER MOUNTAIN TRIP

Motored 35 Miles Through Washington Forest

President Taft Refuses to Be Hurried After Mountain Trip.

Mount Rainier, Wash., Oct. 6.—
President Taft motored 85 miles through the Washington forest to the snow line on Mount Rainier. Heavy clouds overhung the sky and the view of the mountain was somewhat obscured, but the Saddle peaks, snow-capped, were visible through the rifts in the mist.

A halt was made at the National Park inn, at the base of the mountain, for luncheon. They only wanted to give the president 20 minutes for luncheon, but he declared that an appetite aroused by such mountain air was not to be appeased in 20 minutes, and he held up the party until he had finished. It is too late in the year to be safe for a very long journey up the mountain, as the snow has set in the higher land.

Opera Singer Is Drowned In River

Easton, Pa., Oct. 9.—Harry M.
Karr, 19, of Brooklyn, was drowned in the Delaware river. He came here with the Aborn Opera company. In company with John McDonough, Miss Zeo Salonski and Miss Minnie Barron of the company he was out rowing in a small boat. Near a bridge pier the boat struck a submerged crib, filled with water and upset. All were thrown into the water and Karr, who was unable to swim, attempted to save one of the girls. There were five other boats in the vicinity, some of them containing members of the Aborn company.

DESPONDENT YOUNG MAN

COMMITTS SUICIDE

DRAINED BOTTLE OF FIERY ACID

Was Unsuccessful in Effort to Find Work

LEFT NOTE FOR HIS PARENTS

Remains Were Taken in Charge by Relatives.

Fay Lee Campbell, 20 years of age, whose home is in Greenfield, committed suicide at Frankfort. He went into the cemetery and drained a bottle of carboic acid, leaving behind a short note of explanation. He was dead when discovered by the sexton.

The youth had been discouraged in not being able to find work that suited him, and purchasing the acid he walked out to the cemetery and there in the bright October sunshine he bade farewell to life and all the joys and sorrows that it holds.

In a note found in his suitcase nearby, he had written: "Papa, I am getting tired of living and I think I have done myself justice. Don't wonder why I did so. Fay Lee Campbell." Scrawled beneath the above were the words: "My father lives on Rufus Hire's place near Greenfield." Added to this, apparently as an afterthought, were the words: "I will meet all of you in heaven."

Inquiry developed that young Campbell had been seeking work at Frankfort and Chillicothe, and not being successful, walked into the Hughey drug store in Frankfort, purchased a two-ounce bottle of carboic acid, and went direct to the cemetery where he ended his life.

His parents were at once notified of the tragedy, and had the remains removed to their home for burial. Like many country boys, Campbell had given up the farm for the lure of the city, and when he left home, had only a small amount of money with him. Failing to secure employment and his money having been expended, he became disheartened and ended his life.

A Divorce Action Recalls Old Case

Mrs. Olin Painter, wife of Elmer Painter, the man who sold a drove of cattle belonging to Col. B. H. Millikan and absconded with the proceeds, something like $3800, has sued her husband for divorce, alleging extreme cruelty and gross neglect.

In addition to asking for divorce, Mrs. Painter asks that reasonable alimony be awarded her. They were married in this city December 25, 1894, and three children were born of the union.

On April 5th, 1911, Painter mysteriously disappeared, after having sold his landlord's cattle, and to this day has not been heard from, although every effort has been made to locate him. No cause for his conduct has been given as yet.

Option Election Petitions Circulated

A local option election in Pickaway county seems now assured, as the necessary petitions have been circulated and enough names secured to call for an election.

An organization under the somewhat dubious title of "The Business Men's Club" is at the head of the movement. It is believed that Pickaway county will go into the dry columns by a larger majority than ever, although there are a large number of prominent men behind the wet movement.

Donald's Cap

"Where's grandpa?" called an excited little voice at the front door. "Papa and I have come to take him driving, and papa's holding the horse."

Grandmother smiled over her glasses. "You'll find grandfather in the library, Donald," she said, and, as the chubby little figure trudged along toward the library door, Aunt Bess called after him,—"In the house, Don. If you want to be my pet neevy!"

A minute later Donald came back into the sitting-room with grandfather's tall silk hat on his head, and it had slipped down over his eyes and nose until nothing but his red rosebud mouth was in sight. But grandfather was close behind, and a minute later he had rescued his precious hat from Donald's head, and the two had started off together.

Donald's papa was waiting in the carriage. "That's right, come on! These horses don't like to stand!" he called, as they came out, and added: "Donald, you've left your cap in the house. Go back and get it." Donald's hands went up to his head. No cap there. So back into the house he went.

"Where's my cap, grandpa?" Grandmother did not know; but she went into the library with him, and lifted all the pillows on the couch, and looked under the couch, and under the chairs, and under the newspapers on the table, and in all the places where Donald's cap usually gets. She could not find it.

Out in the carriage Donald's papa was getting impatient. "It's strange they can't find that cap!" he muttered. "The boy wasn't in the house five minutes." And at last he gave the reins to grandfather, and went in to see about it himself.

"I don't member puttin' it anywhere at all, papa," Donald said. "That's the trouble—he never does remember!" his papa said finally. "I told him yesterday that the next time he lost his cap he'd stay at home from the place he was going, and that means this drive. Father and I will go without him. This is the only way to teach him. But, if he finds his cap before we come back, I'll take him a little drive then." And Donald's papa jumped into the carriage beside grandfather and drove off.

Donald sat on the front steps, looking after them, a miserable little heap of disappointment. Two big tears were rolling down his cheeks. It was a beautiful, sunny Saturday afternoon, and he had been promised this drive all the week! Oh, dear—and, oh, dear! Where could that old cap be?

It was two hours before the carriage drove up again.

"Have you found your cap?" called papa.

Donald shook his head hopelessly, and Aunt Bess answered: "Found it! We've turned this house inside out since you went away; and, if I didn't remember telling him to take it off when he came in, I should know positively that you brought him here bareheaded!"

While she was speaking, grandfather had climbed out of the carriage, and now, as he came up the steps, he took off his own high hat and put it on Donald's curly head.

"There, sir!" he said. "If you can't find your hat, you may have mine!"

It was only a joke, of course, for grandfather is really very careful of his shiny silk hat; but, as he lifted it from Donald's again, Aunt Bess cried out, "Look there!"

"Well!" said grandfather. "I never!" said grandfather. For there, on top of Donald's curls, was the missing cap!

By that time papa had tied the horses and was coming up the steps. "Where did that cap come from?" he demanded, and they all stared at each other without a word.

Donald spoke first. "I know!" he cried. "It came out of the top of grandpa's hat!"

"It must have stuck there when he had on my hat before!" added grandfather.

"Now, papa," Donald said then, "I couldn't find my cap 'fore you comed back, 'cause you an' grandpa had it wiv you in the carriage."

Papa burst out laughing at that. "Come on, father!" he cried.

"There's time yet for a good spin round the park before dinner, and I think I owe this boy a drive!"—Grace Ethelwyn Cody, in Youth's Companion.

Raising A Beard.

It was partly owing to the fact that Chemorley's razors needed honing and partly the beautifully trimmed beard that Siever had raised during his year's absence abroad. Siever said that at last he had known something of the joy of living since he had acquired this handsome adornment of his. "Some of the men let their hair grow long, too," he told Chemorley, "but I think that's carrying it too far. I can stand for a haircut once a month, but this thing of shaving every blessed day and wasting the precious hours of a man's life is too much."

Chemorley, having in mind his morning martyrdom of the past three weeks, was disposed to agree with his friend.

He talked it over with Mrs. Chemorley, as in duty bound. She did not seem to entertain the idea favorably.

"If it was too bad I could shave it off again," argued Chemorley. "You don't know what a bother it is, this shaving."

Accordingly he put in an appearance at breakfast the next morning unshaven. Mrs. Chemorley looked at

Mrs. Chemorley sniffed displeasure, him and sniffed: "I shouldn't think you would want to go downtown looking like that," she said.

"It does take a little strength of mind," admitted Chemorley. "But I'm going to do it, just the same."

Nobody noticed him that day, but the day following when the stubble had attained a quite respectable length, comment began. It is not necessary to recount what was said. It was about the usual thing. By the end of the week Chemorley had a decidedly trim appearance.

"Never mind," he said, "if it keeps growing at this rate it will be long enough to trim in a couple of weeks more."

The week following, however, the beard did not seem to progress at the same rate. The growth was almost imperceptible. Still, it was growing, and, in spite of the jeers of his friends and business associates, Chemorley let it grow. At the week's end, though, Chemorley received a letter from an important business connection in San Francisco. The business connection, whose business was worth a great deal to Chemorley, was to arrive in Chicago, it appeared, and he wanted Chemorley to meet him. Chemorley talked it over with his wife.

"I shall entertain him in style, of course," he said. "I'm anxious to make a good impression on that man."

"You are sure to do that with a face bristling like a scrubbing brush," said Mrs. Chemorley, sarcastically. "It may seem a small thing, but there really is a good deal in first impressions," she continued.

"If I were you I would shave."

Chemorley got to thinking it over, and he shaved—for that occasion only.

A week later, just as the stubble had attained the hesitating point, Melba came to town. Chemorley had been rather shunning society, but there was no getting out of taking Mrs. Chemorley to the Auditorium and—

"Well, would you be willing for me to go the way I am?" asked Chemorley.

"If you think you can stand it, I might," replied his wife. "But," she added, "it isn't so very far along now. Don't you think you might shave it this once and then take a fresh start?"

He was determined to have that beard, however. The week went by and he bristled out finely. Every morning he would remark to Mrs. Chemorley on the blissfulness of not having to strop a razor, lather and scrape for ten long, valuable minutes and then being under no necessity of washing out a shaving mug, cleaning, drying and incasing the razor.

The second week was passed. The growth did actually begin to look like a beard. Then:

"My dear," said Mrs. Chemorley one morning. "Bertha writes me that she is going to make us a little visit and she is going to bring with her—whom do you think? Your old sweetheart, Ella Rogers. It seems that Ella is on her way to New York and Bertha and she will start East together. So Bertha thought we might like to entertain her for a few days. I'm sure I don't mind. You are beginning to look so nice and domestic with that beard. No, I shall not be uneasy."

Chemorley says that some of these days he will join a popular expedition and then he will raise that beard. For the present he has given up the idea.

THE EXCEPTION TO THE RULE.

It had all ended as Rodney knew it would. He had known from the beginning that his father would never consent to his marrying Alice Leigh. How could his father know that she was the sweetest, the most refined little lady in the world, for he would not listen. The fact that she was a farmer's daughter had settled it with Judge Baker. "Marry one in your own station, Rodney," he had said. "I'm not playing the stern father, or anything of the sort. I am simply doing you a kindness which you will thank me for in ten years."

The judge closed the door with a satisfied sigh. "A disagreeable duty ever," he said to himself. The girl is probably some saucy country lass with eyes bright enough to captivate Rodney. She would feel shy and awkward among our city ways; and embarrassed by her mistakes, Rodney would soon tire of her." And the judge felt that he had been kind to his son.

But Helen, Rodney's sister, knew; for the boy, having no mother, felt he must tell his woes to some one. Helen knew it all; how Rodney had Roddie I will see what I can do. met Alice Leigh at a friend's home, while in college, and that a friendship had sprung up between them which ripened into love as they met from time to time. A story to which his father would not listen.

Helen was never strong, and as the summer days came Judge Blake decided to take her to the country for a month. "Good by, Roddie," she said the morning she went away. "If I see Alice maybe I can show father what a nice girl she is."

The morning was bright and clear and the judge and Helen started out for their usual drive. These drives were bringing roses to Helen's cheeks and helping the judge to feel younger. There had been no chance to help poor Rodney's cause thus far, and this morning, as they rode along, Helen was trying to find some way, to speak to her father about it, when suddenly from around a sharp bend an auto came upon them and their usual quiet horse, taking fright, sprang into the ditch and ran.

All would have been well, even then, for the judge was an experienced horseman, but as he gave the reins a sharp pull one broke, leaving the judge powerless. His mind worked quickly, and, taking Helen in his arms, he sprang. As he struck the ground in the ferns and weeds by the roadside, a feminine scream rent the air, and a young lady of perhaps 20 years sprang forward and clasped Helen from the judge's arms. And Helen was safe and none the worse for the encounter.

When he came to himself once more he was lying in a darkened room, which smelled of the roses blossoming 'neath the window, and the same young lady was sitting by his side.

After a little he realized what had happened and he piled his nurse and Helen with questions. He learned he was laid up with a sprained ankle and was thrown upon the hospitality of Mr. Henry Leigh and his daughter Alice; but no recollection of Rodney's confession of love did the name bring to him.

As the days went by Rodney received these two letters:

My Dear Son:—The ankle is doing as well as could be expected. As I wrote you we were marvellously fortunate in being brought to the home of Mr. Leigh. His daughter Alice is one of the sweetest of girls. An unusual gift—there is no stamp of the country girl about her. I may if all goes well, bring her back with me, a mother for you and Helen. Helen has already learned to love her. Your affectionate father, L. S. Blake.

The other from Helen: I guess it will be all right now; Rodney, dear, Come down and stay, over Sunday. Helen.

Saturday night found Alice and Helen at the station, and half an hour later Rodney was standing before his father, Alice Leigh's hand in his. "Father, allow me to present your future daughter-in-law. You remember I spoke to you of our engagement some time ago."

For a moment the judge was speechless and, possibly, the least bit chagrined; and then he gave them as fond a blessing as even Helen could wish. Boston Post.

STILL WEAK FROM HOT SPELL.

Physicians say that the unusual and terrific heat of last summer did great damage to many people who do not even suspect it. There are many right in this town who are feeling weak, listless and discouraged, losing flesh and going into a decline on account of the strain of last summer.

A Red Bank, N. J., man, Mr. Walton Cullington, has found what to do in such cases. He says: "When I was badly rundown, growing weak and losing flesh, I took Vinol to build me up and make me strong. It has been perfectly satisfactory, and I would not take anything for the good Vinol did me. I am all right now."

It would be a great blessing if all who are in broken health, whether old, middle-aged or young, could know that Vinol is the one thing they need to make them well and strong again. We can prove by people you know well that Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil, is the greatest blood builder and strength creator known, and we guarantee it to give satisfaction. Highland Is Wet

It seems that Highland county has never held a county local option election, as mentioned in connection with the fact that Greenfield was going to hold a wet and dry election, a few days ago.

While the county never voted as a unit, a condition exists which is probably not found in any other county, all of the corporations and townships having voted dry with the exception of one, and in that one the citizens will not allow a saloon to be run.

Under these conditions, if Greenfield votes wet it will be wet unless a county vote is held and the county votes dry.

THREE CANDIDATES FILE PETITIONS

THREE-PLY RACE

FOR DELEGATE TO THE CONVENTION

Saturday was the last day for filing of petitions by candidates for Constitutional Convention delegate, and three petitions were filed, placing Attorneys W. B. Rogers, Humphrey Jones and ex-State Senator Thomas W. Marchant in the field for the place. Delegates to the Constitutional Convention are elected on non-partisan tickets, so the fact that two of the candidates are Republicans and the third a Democrat, is not to be considered in the race.

Mr. Rogers states that he is in the progressive class; Mr. Marchant in the conservative and Mr. Jones has taken the happy medium of "conservatively progressive".

The purpose of the Constitutional convention, as its name indicates, is to draw up a new constitution for the state of Ohio.

MAYORALTY CANDIDATES

HOT CAMPAIGN

WILL ALL STAY IN RACE

Unless something very unexpected turns up, all three candidates for Mayor will remain in the race to the finish, and the race promises to be unusually interesting.

Following Mayor Allen's announcement, together with a statement of his platform, politics has again become the all absorbing topic of conversation.

In order to ascertain whether or not both Mr. T. P. Sites, Democrat, and Mr. Harve W. Smith, Republican, would continue in the race, a HERALD reporter interviewed each of these gentlemen and both announced an intention of remaining in until the finish. Neither expressed surprise at Mayor Allen entering the field on an independent ticket. Both said they had expected it.

Odd as it may seem, both Mr. Sites and Mr. Smith said that they had not read the platform announced by Mayor Allen and each one declared emphatically that he would make a fight for the office, and expressed confidence in his ability to win.

Mr. Sites stated that he was a Democrat, and that he did not intend mixing in Republican affairs, and would do his best to win.

Mr. Smith said that he had nothing in particular to say for publication.

Home No. 137—TELEPHONES—BELL. MAIN No. 370

HERE IS A NEW ONE.

Here is an absolutely new fad of the, of course independent rich, old bachelor, John Wendt, who has lived on a small island in the Spokane river since the founding of the town of Spokane Falls, more than 30 years ago. He jumps into the class mentioned when he announces that he purposes to gather together a collection of hair pins, which he will melt and mold into medals to be presented to suffragettes through the United States and elsewhere, who pass tests of being able to take care of a baby, bake wholesome bread and darn socks. He collects the pins with a magnetized cane, his favorite haunts being lobbies of hotels, theaters, cafes and street crossings where the traffic is heavy. His shack on the island near a bridge is equipped with a small smelter and a series of molds for making medals. He earns his livelihood by mending umbrellas and kitchen utensils.

It is not likely, in the opinion of those who profess to be well up on the suffragette movement, that the eccentric old bachelor will be compelled to overwork the machinery in his smelter.

Experts incline to the belief that the real suffragette would not so humiliate herself as to try to pass the crusty old bachelor's examination just to prove to him that she could get a perfect grade on his test.

And as for wearing a medal made of the hair pins purloined from the heads of other women, who of the suffragettes would be attracted by such a prize?

That the movement will be a flat failure seems assured and the old bachelor will have his empty fad for his pains.

In the meantime the suffragette movement will go on uninterruptedly.

THE TRUE NEWSPAPER.

Much has been written and much more has been said on the very marked decline during the last decade of the rabid partizan press.

There are still a few dictatorial politicians, especially in the larger cities who, while deep down in their inner-most conscience will not deny that the death knell of the biased newspaper has been rung, still cling to the old order of things and try first by flattery and, failing in that, by bull-doing tactics, to control the fair and unbiased press.

There are not many of the real, brainy, political leaders who have not long ago given up the ghost and submitted decently to the later rules which require that the game be played separate and apart without an ally in the shape of a newspaper, which falsifies the facts to suit the political bosses and leaders.

During the last decade many newspapers of great value, the country over, which were run on the partizan plan, have either changed hands and right-about faced on their methods or gone to the wall.

Time was when the people could be fooled with wholly or partially false statements of fact, but that day has gone by. People in these days read a newspaper to get the facts and refuse to stand for garbled or false accounts to please the vanity or line the pocketbook of the politician.

A few isolated sub-bosses still believe that the old regime will return, but the real brainy political leaders who know the truth must come are content to get only the truth.

It speaks volumes for the intelligence and the morals of the American people that they have steadfastly frowned down the falsifying newspapers.

Transportation Is Alaska's Greatest Problem

By JAMES M'CREAR, President of Pennsylvania Railroad

IN regard to the development of Alaskan coal the FIRST DIFFICULTY, to my mind, is the finding of a MARKET. So far as present home consumption is concerned, this tonnage would be too small an item to justify development, and therefore the GENERAL MARKET must be DEPENDENT upon to absorb the output, and when the cost of placing the coal on cars at the mines, the INTEREST on the cost of a railroad from the mines to TIDEWATER and the cost of MAINTAINING and OPERATING a railroad that will have but a comparatively small tonnage are taken into consideration I question its yielding a sufficiently attractive profit in COMPETITION with the FUEL OIL of California and COAL from the island of Vancouver.

WHAT IS JUST NOW MOST NEEDED IN ALASKA IS THE DEVELOPMENT OF TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES, WHETHER ON RIVER OR BY CONSTRUCTION OF GOOD TRAILS OR ONE LEGGED RAILROADS—ANYTHING BETTER THAN THE BACK OF A MAN OR A MULE OR A SIX DOG SLEDGE.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION OF 1850-1851

Its Approach Regarded With Satisfaction—Selection of Delegates and the Organization.

BY PROFESSOR C. B. GALBREATH,
Former Ohio State Librarian.

The people seem to have approached the constitutional convention of 1850-51 in a mood on the whole rather optimistic. There were some misgivings and an occasional gloomy prophecy, but serene confidence and sanguine anticipation were clearly dominant. Those who had prominently interested themselves in the movement for a new constitution hoped to see included in it a goodly portion at least of their favorite reforms. The general feeling was fairly expressed by Hon. Samuel Medary:

"The people now have it in their power to change the state constitution so as to make it conform to the progressive needs of the age, and by so doing to simplify their state government and make it cost less to the taxpayer, and at the same time better protect the citizen in his rights."

We have here set forth the lure that is often dangled before the citizen to lead him into the maze of experiment and change. There is a wonderfully attractive power in the things that are cheap and free. In the press of the day much space was given to assurances that a new constitution was to bring great relief to the taxpayer. In the very nature of things such assurance must be in large measure illusory. Take for instance the reform of the judiciary, the demand for which led to the submission of the question of holding the constitutional convention, and without which submission would undoubtedly have been deferred for at least twenty years. The courts were so overcrowded that it was impossible for them to perform the services for which they were created. A system must be devised that would provide more judges of higher average ability, and such a system must inevitably cost the taxpayer more money. Of course such a change should bring compensation in the form of better service and more prompt and satisfactory administration of justice.

Taxes are a tribute paid to civilization. If we would enjoy its comforts and conveniences—to say nothing of its luxuries—we must "pay the price." The only state of society which escapes that condition is the one found in Ohio before the white man came. The Indians were not troubled with the tax problem. The people have a right to demand that taxes be economically expended in efficient and necessary service, and this service brings such ample compensation in the greater ability to pay taxes that its burdens are not felt—that they do not exist. The new constitution was to provide a form of government adequate for a progressive and expanding population with growing needs. This could not be made to cost less to the taxpayer. Taxes could not be avoided, but provision could be made for their more equitable collection and distribution.

Others held forth the hope that provision might be made for relieving the state of its $18,000,000 of indebtedness incurred in building up its system of internal improvements and paying an annual interest of over $1,000,000. The finances of the state were in bad condition, partly as a result of the advent of railroads that were taking the place of the canals and curtailing their receipts, but chiefly because all unnoticed at the heart of our system of internal improvements the canker of the spoils system feed and fattened at the expense of the people. Some of the reformers, without recognizing the cause, were still insistent in their demands for relief, and not without warrant hoped that the new constitution might inaugurate a better order in the finances of the state.

On Feb. 23, 1850, an act to call a convention passed the general assembly. It provided for the election on the first Monday in April of 108 delegates, one from each representative district, to meet in convention "to revise, amend or change the constitution of the state." The convention was to meet in Columbus on the first Monday in May, 1850, and have power to adjourn to such other place or places in the state as its members might deem proper.

The time for the selection of delegates was comparatively brief, only a little more than a month. The press of the state seemed to be alive to the importance of the election and urged that "only the best men be put forward as candidates," that they must not be picked up at random to frame the fundamental law of the state.

But party spirit ran high and there were practically no independent candidates in the field. The Whigs had not been enthusiastically in favor of framing a new constitution at this time because they feared that with their waning power it would not be possible to elect a majority of the delegates to the convention. On the other hand the Democrats were sanguine that they would triumph at the polls and that theirs was the great opportunity to write and submit a new constitution for the people of Ohio. In the contest for delegates, the Democrats as the original friends of revision had a decided advantage over their opponents who had been lukewarm or secretly opposed to calling a convention. In the year 1850, the first Monday of April was the first day of April, but so far as known this contingency did not adversely affect the results of the election.

Writers have bestowed high praise on the body of men chosen to frame our second constitution. Perhaps at this late day it would be vain and unpatriotic to question this judgment, and something on the character and personality of the delegates of all our conventions is reserved for future presentation. It is very safe to say, however, that the electors of the different districts did not, without exception, send to this convention their men best equipped for framing the constitution. In the county of Franklin, including then as it does at present, the capital city of the state, Samuel Medary, the chief advocate of the convention, a man of experience in public affairs, and especially well informed on all questions likely to arise before that body, was defeated by his Whig opponent, John Graham, a local surveyor and former sheriff, who evidently knew little about the constitution and was not stimulated to interest in it by contact with his fellow delegates. Medary outside of the convention had more to do than Graham in the convention in shaping the constitution. Hon. Henry Stanbery of Columbus, who represented a district made up of Delaware county and a portion of Franklin, however, gave the capital city fitting eminence in the convention.

Of the one hundred and eight delegates chosen, sixty-four were Democrats, forty-one Whigs and three Free-Soilers. An even dozen were or afterward became prominent. A large majority were what is sometimes vaguely designated as "representative"; that is, they were representative in character and ability of the average citizenship of their districts and responsive to the wishes of a majority of their constituents. Of a small and harmless minority so much could not be said, and some of its members would probably not have recognized a state constitution had it come walking up the principal street of the capital city.

The delegates met in the State House in Columbus May 6, 1850. A roll call of the members showed all present except four. The first motion offered designated the officers of the convention as president, secretary, assistant secretary, sergeant-at-arms and doorkeeper.

The point of order was made that the convention could not proceed to business until the members had taken the oath of office. Then, strange to relate, the question was raised whether or not the delegates could consistently take the oath to support the constitution of Ohio when they had met "to construct a new constitution embracing no part of the old one," as a prominent member put it. Another delegate drew attention to the fact that they were only to prepare a constitution to be submitted to the people for ratification, and that until this was done they must live and act under the old constitution, by virtue of which alone they were authorized to assemble in convention; but this did not satisfy the members and, remarkable and unwarranted as their action was, they actually decided that they would not on entering upon the duties of their office, take oath to support the constitution of Ohio, Judge Peter Hitchcock, delegate from Geauga county, administered the oath to members in these words:

"You solemnly swear that you will support the constitution of the United States and that you will honestly and faithfully to the state of Ohio discharge your duties as members of this convention?"

Judge Hitchcock, who certainly knew that the action of convention was not very creditable to the spirit and intelligence of its members, so shaped the oath that it approached as nearly as possible to pledging support to the constitution of Ohio.

The election of president of the convention resulted in the choice of William Medill of Fairfield county, who was elected by a vote of sixty. His leading competitor, Joseph Vance, received thirty-eight votes. W. H. Gill was elected secretary. The previous general assembly had reserved to itself the right to choose the reporter and had named for that important post J. W. Smith.

The Democratic majority, in spite of protestations to the contrary, was held steadily in line when questions arose affecting party interests, the distribution of honors, and other forms of patronage. At the outset they were willing and even eager to lay aside partisanship, after they had gathered in the offices and given Samuel Medary a somewhat luscious plum in the form of a contract to publish the proceedings of the convention. In fairness it must be said that if the Whigs had been in control they would, perhaps, not have been less selfish and partisan.

EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX

YOUR BIBLE QUESTIONS WILL BE ANSWERED IN THESE COLUMNS, OR BY MAIL IF SENT TO THE EDITOR OF THIS JOURNAL

Q.—Please explain this Scripture: "But every one shall die for his own iniquity; every man that eateth the sour grape, his teeth shall be set on edge."

Answer.—The Prophet is here describing the condition that will prevail during Messiah's Mediatorial reign. Prior thereto conditions have been different. Adam, the father of the human race, sinned and was sentenced to death, which judgment or sentence of death passed by inheritance upon all men. (Romans v, 12.) Figuratively speaking, Adam ate the sour grape and his children's teeth were set on edge, but since Jesus has redeemed the human race from that judgment of death He will try all mankind for life during His reign (Acts xvii, 31); all who then disobey Him He will destroy (Acts iii, 23; 2 Thessalonians i, 9). Those who then die will not die because of inherited sin, but they shall be cut off as individual sinners (Isaiah lxi, 20).

Take Your Common Colds Seriously.
Common colds, severe and frequent, lay the foundation of chronic diseased conditions of the nose and throat, pneumonia, and consumption. For all coughs and colds in children and in grown persons, take Foley's Honey and Tar Compound promptly. After exposure, and when you feel a cold coming on, take Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It checks and relieves. Use no substitute. The genuine in a yellow package always. Blackmer & Tanquary.

Bad-order Cars Fuel for Flames

Late Saturday night a string of 300 bad order cars owned by the D. T. & I. and set off along the road near Springfield, caught fire from some unknown manner, and half a score were consumed before the fire department could reach the scene and extinguish the blaze.

Only prompt action saved the entire string of cars from total destruction.

A Household Medicine that Gives Confidence
Is Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. Mrs. T. J. Adams, 522 No. Kansas Ave., Columbus, Kas., writes: "For a number of years my children have been subject to coughs and colds. I got some of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and have found that it cured their coughs and colds in a very short time, so I keep it in the house all the time." Blackmer & Tanquary.

Two Elections Are Called

Athens and Columbiana Counties to Vote Under Rose Law.

Athens, O., Oct. 9.—Judge J. M. Wood of the common pleas court set Oct. 28 as the date of the local option election in Athens county. The wet petition, filed two days after it was started, contained the names of 5,728 voters, over 72 per cent of the last county vote.

Commissioners Take Action.
Lisbon, O., Oct. 9.—The county commissioners set Nov. 3 as the date of the next county local option election in Columbiana county. A petition containing 7,499 names was favorably acted upon by the commissioners.

James C. Dahlman, "Cowboy" Mayor of Omaha, "Throws the Lariat"

Mayor Jas. C. Dahlman is of an interesting and impressive personality. Starting his career as a cowboy, he is at present Mayor of Omaha, and has the following record to his credit: Sheriff of Dawes Co., Neb., three terms; Mayor of Chadron, two terms; Democratic Nat'l Committeeman, eight years; Mayor of Omaha, six years, and in 1910 Candidate for Governor of Nebraska. Writing to Foley & Co., Chicago, he says: "I have taken Foley Kidney Pills and they have given me a great deal of relief so I cheerfully recommend them." Yours truly, (Signed) JAMES C. DAHLMAN.

Nothing Doing In Strike

Railway Officials Declare Many Shopmen Weary of Struggle.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Quiet prevailed in the strike of shop workers on the Illinois Central and other Harriman railroads, according to the announcements of railroad officials. They said the men are becoming dissatisfied with the way the strike was called and that many of the local unions are demanding it be ended. Union leaders maintain that the men are satisfied with the progress of the strike and are prepared to remain out all winter, if necessary, to gain their demands.

Foley's Kidney Remedy vs. a Hopeless Case.

Hon. Ark. J. E. Freeman says: "I had a severe case of kidney trouble and could not work and my case seemed hopeless. I used several well known kidney remedies, and had the services of a doctor, all of which gave me no relief. One large bottle of Foley's Kidney Remedy cured me and I have never been bothered since. I have also recommended it to my friends who all received the same good results." Blackmer & Tanquary.

White Sox Fourth In American Race

Victory Over Cleveland Enables White Sox to Pass Boston.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—The White Sox closed their season with a win over the Cleveland Naps and passed into fourth place. They finished in the first division by beating the Naps, 10 to 4. At first glance the figures indicate that the Boston Red Sox and the White Sox were tie for the last place in the first division, but when carried to five figures the averages are as follows: Chicago, .50993; Boston, .50980.

POETRY.-TODAY

HAPPINESS.

Over the hills and far away
Some seek happiness day by day.
O'er the world and its distance wide,
Forest and stream and mountain chain;
O'er the sands at the ocean's side,
Swamp, morass and the wind-swept plain.
Vainly they search as the days go by,
Failing to see she is standing nigh.
Happiness dwells where a heart beats true
And a love-lit face smiles up at you.

Cabin or palace, 'tis all the same,
All declare she's a fickle dame.
But few there be with the wit to know
She lives only with warm heart beats;
Dwelling content in love's warm glow—
Palace or cabin or far retreats.
Vainly they search in the old, blind way
For what stands forth in the light of day.
Happiness dwells where a heart beats true
And the lips of love reach up to you.

Still unbought by the sheen of gold;
Changeless still in the heart or cold,
If in the heart of the seeker dwells
Purpose strong and a faith supreme;
If with a will the soul compels Endless days for its youth's day dream.
Happiness dwells in the lowly cot,
Scorns the palace where hearts are bought,
Dwells content where the heart beats true
And love holds out a hand to you.
—Will M. Maupin in The Commoner.

Chased the Aeroplane Girl Defied the Law

Helen Detrien, the Frenchwoman who has been flying at Nassau boulevard field, but after leading the officers a merry chase for several miles she decided to surrender and stopped the car.

When the sheriff arrived another wrangle ensued, in which Alfred Moisant proposed that they return to his aviation grounds. This was done, and upon arrival of the party he demanded to see the warrant for his sister's arrest. The officers had none and were ordered off the field by Moisant, under penalty of being arrested as trespassers.

Later three deputy sheriffs went to the home of Justice of the Peace Gittins at Hempstead and asked for a warrant for Miss Moisant's arrest. "What has she done?" asked the justice. "She's been flying in the air on Sunday," came the response. The justice said he couldn't see that that was any worse than riding on the ground in an automobile, and refused to issue the warrant.

Lightning's Pranks Two Horses Killed

During one of the electrical storms the latter part of last week, lightning struck two horses belonging to Bert Garringer, two miles east of this city, and killed them instantly. Both were valuable horses, and the loss to Mr. Garringer is in the neighborhood of $400.

During the same storm a bolt of lightning fell near the Jerome Taylor residence, striking a shock of fodder and burning it up. Within 150 feet of the shock of fodder was a large tree, while 250 feet away was the Taylor dairy barn and about the same distance the residence. This indicates that the lightning does not single out the highest object to strike.

Tomorrow is the last discount day for gas and electric light bills.

High Valuations Make Lower Taxes

The taxes of the C. H. & D. railroad compared with last year, run nearly $500 less than that year, notwithstanding that the valuation of the road was increased from $222,381 to $518,210.

This was ascertained by a recent statement compiled upon request of the C. H. & D. railroad, and will throw the taxes much lower than heretofore, where it was generally supposed the taxes would be materially increased.

Falls Down Steps Fractures Ankle

Frank Mayer, proprietor of the O. K. Barber shop, met with a very painful mishap about ten o'clock Saturday night, when he fell down the steps leading to the barber shop under Gossard's jewelry store, and fractured his right ankle, causing an injury which will prevent the use of the limb for many weeks.

Mr. Mayer was carrying a box down into the barber shop, and tripped when within three steps of the bottom, twisting his ankle under him, breaking the small bone. Drs. Ireland and Brock reduced the fracture.

Jailed Witness Draws His Pay

An interesting decision was announced in Chillicothe Saturday, when Judge Goldsberry awarded Charles Trent, a southern negro, the sum of $1 per day for 107 days he was confined in the Ross county jail, being held as a witness.

The grand jury failed to indict the man against whom Trent was expected to testify, the witness was an expensive one, and his board cost 80c per day in addition to his "salary".

THE EIGHTH NUMBER WASHINGTON LECTURE COURSE

Dr. Markley was prior to going on the lecture platform the pastor of one of the largest churches in Denver. He is a word painter as well as an eloquent orator. He also has an unflinching sense of humor and the faculty of making his hearers see as he does and share his enthusiasm. He speaks with the authority of an expert, the judgment of long experience, the knowledge and sympathy of personal acquaintance, the critical acumen and graceful style of the scholar. He tells stories of a kind that brings a lump to the throat and a glimpse of glory to the eye, and supplements them with others that make one fairly choke with laughter.

Judge Ben B. Lindsey, the noted juvenile court judge of Denver, says of Markley: "No more powerful man than Markley ever occupied a pulpit in the west. In Dr. Markley's lectures there is a message. They breathe the spirit and power of a sincere, eloquent, strong man. Those who hear him will be charmed, delighted, inspired, entertained, helped and uplifted. Dr. Markley stands for ideals which he fearlessly maintains, regardless of consequences, with an eloquence that easily ranks with that of the very best orators of this country."

Many Hear Billy Sunday The Noted Evangelist

A large number from this city went to Springfield Sunday, some going by auto, a large number taking advantage of the excursion, and heard the famous "baseball" evangelist, Billy Sunday, who preached three sermons in the mammoth tabernacle erected for this purpose.

At the morning service it was possible to obtain seats, but in the afternoon the large tabernacle was packed to the point of suffocation, and standing room within hearing distance of the "cyclone" evangelist was taken. Excursionists from all over central Ohio flocked in to hear him. The Sunday awakening is stirring Springfield to its greatest depths.

Bride Flourishes Gun "Bellers" Take Flight

A few nights ago a party of boys in Bloomingburg who wished to serenade a couple who were married a few weeks ago, were given the fright of their lives, when they were busily engaged in trying to see who could make the most noise, and, according to the boys' story, a gun was suddenly thrust through the half open door by the bride, who threatened to shoot unless the boys made themselves scarce in a hurry.

The boys did not wait to see what was going to happen. They did not have time, for before any of them realized what had happened they were out of the yard and flying as fast as their willing feet could carry them.

The boys declare that they will not attempt to serenade the couple again and that the fright they received will last them for a long time to come.

Diphtheria Appears In Country School

The Oak Grove school, located on the Waterloo pike four miles east of Washington, was closed Monday morning for one week, a case of diphtheria having made its appearance in the family of a Mr. Badger, and a member of the family is a pupil.

The Badger family was promptly quarantined, and the school closed so that no further spread of the disease would take place. School was dismissed for one week. J. T. Cummings teaches the Oak Grove school. The school house was not quarantined.

These Neighbors Were Friends Indeed

John Hayman, of near Danville, whose son was run over and fatally injured, dying some ten days later, has been brought to realize that a friend in need is a friend indeed.

When his son was injured it required his attention until death relieved him of suffering, and Mr. Hayman's corn remained unharvested. Thursday forty of his friends gathered in and put 30 acres of the crop in the shock in a remarkably short time, much to Mr. Hayman's pleasure.

He values his friends more highly than ever since this act of neighborliness was done.

Merchants' Mule Race At the Fall Races

The Fall Fair promoters have had a happy thought for next week's races and it is taking like wild fire. It is a "Merchant's mule race" and if it doesn't prove the most side splitting race ever put on the track it will be because the mules won't "act natural".

The idea is that each of Washington's merchants, send to the track a mule, decorated as the merchant sees fit and with his pennants crying the wares of the sender.

No man rides his own mule, the riders being generally switched. The rider that comes under the wire first wins $5.00 and the remainder of a $50.00 purse will be divided among the four mules that come in last.

The finish must be made within 15 minutes of the start, or the mule will be disqualified. If any mule bolts the track it will have to go back to where the break was made and start over.

It is expected that 25 or more mules will be entered and that it will be the big drawing card of the fair is a foregone conclusion.

There is no entry fee, the merchants having no expense except providing and decorating the mule.

Aside from the fun of the race it is certainly a unique method of advertising and will flaunt Washington's merchants and their stocks before what is expected to be one of the biggest crowds ever in the grand stand.

Chillicothe Booze; $5 and the Costs

Ed Golden, white, was arrested Saturday night, charged with having absorbed too much Chillicothe booze. When arraigned before the Mayor on Sunday, he entered a plea of guilty, paid the usual five and costs and was turned loose.

Chillicothe liquor has caused a goodly number of the recent drunks who have faced His Honor in this city.

Hoy Pleads Guilty Goes to Mansfield

William Hoy, indicted for stealing W. E. Reynold's horse and buggy on the night of September 29th, was arraigned before Judge Carpenter late this afternoon, entered a plea of guilty to stealing the outfit, and was sentenced to an indeterminate term in the Mansfield reformatory.

Sheriff Nelson will accompany Hoy to Mansfield Tuesday morning.

To Marshal Liens W. R. Bowyer Sued

An action was brought against W. R. Bowyer, by Attorney E. L. Bush in the Common Pleas court on a judgment in the sum of nearly $35, obtained in the court of Justice Craig, and upon which an execution was levied upon the fixtures of the Bowyer pool room.

Chattel mortgage holders to the number of three were made defendants to the action in the Common Pleas court which is one to marshal the liens. Unless adjusted within a certain time, the suit may result in a sale of the fixtures.

A transcript of the judgment before the justice was filed in Common Pleas court, and the Sheriff made the levy.

OHIO'S POTATO CROP FAR BELOW AVERAGE.

Colored Drunks Have Big Mix-up Our Growth

Two parties of colored people, three in each party and hailing from this city and Sabina, enjoyed a genuine old time knock-down and drag-out battle on the Bush Road near Selden, Sunday, and for a time it looked like the affray might result seriously.

It is claimed that there was plenty of booze in the crowd, which brought on an altercation that quickly terminated in blows, one man being knocked across the road and another rendered unconscious. One report is that a knife was used, and one man was severely stabbed. No names could be learned.

Nearby residents called for Sheriff Nelson, but he was out at the time, and when word reached him, the trouble had blown over and all parties had gone their way, even one man who was left lying in the roadway was able to drag himself away.

NERVOUS TROUBLE HAS MANY PHASES

Strain and Worry of Modern Life Makes Numbers of People Physical Wrecks.

The country is filled with half sick worn out, nervous people. The cause is nervous debility and it is produced by the strain and worry of modern life.

The symptoms of nervous debility are stomach trouble, uneasy sleep, nervousness, little energy, or vitality, constipation, poor circulation, bad memory, cold feet, weak back and susceptibility to coughs and colds.

A man or woman afflicted with this debilitated condition has little happiness, as the trouble always produces a mental depression that causes the sufferer to look on the gloomy side of life, and be dissatisfied with the present, and have small hope for the future.

Anything, to be successful, should add to the happiness of the human race. No medicine ever before sold in the United States has been so tremendously successful as the wonderful new tonic "Tona Vita." The reason is plain. "Tona Vita" is bringing back health and happiness to thousands of discouraged, "rundown" men and women.

Are you in this rundown, debilitated condition? Do you tire easily, sleep poorly and feel half dead most of the time? If you are you can get immediate relief and renew your ability to fight life's battles by letting this great Tonic build you up and restore your strength. Don't drag around feeling miserable and hopeless another day. You will positively be astonished how quickly "Tona Vita" will start you on the road to health. The tonic is sold with the distinct understanding that it must renew your health, or the price is refunded.

Lee's Rhubarb Laxative is an assistant remedy to "Tona Vita." It is to be used in cases of chronic constipation. There is no plant known to modern medicine so thoroughly reliable and harmless as rhubarb. It is nature's own laxative and instead of straining the intestines, like other drugs, tones them up and gives them new strength. Lee's Rhubarb Laxative is the safest possible laxative to children and they like the taste. It should be in every household.

These two great preparations are sold in Washington C. H. by Brown's Drug Store.

Turks desire Intervention Says Reports

After from the Verosa went ashore and blew up the ammunition. There was a terrific noise and a vast cloud of smoke spread over the town. On Oct. 5 over 2,000 sailors and marines landed. The Turks had vanquished.

OUTLINES HIS PLANS

New Leader Tells How Turks Expect to Whip Italians.

Paris, Oct. 9.—Fethi Bey, who left Paris to take command of the Turkish forces at Tripoli, informed the Temps correspondent on board the Tafia, while going to Tripoli Oct. 2, that he could not attempt to defend the city. Fethi Bey is quoted as saying: "Our plan is simple. Without coming to real fight or being caught napping we will delay the Italian landing as much as possible and then retreat to Djado, where there is as much water as the army will require. The troops along the Tunisian frontier and at Ghadames and Fezzan will also concentrate in the same district. Within a few weeks we will have a camp of 10,000 regulars and twice if not three times as many Arabs, well armed and disciplined. Then the serious trouble will commence."

Parade Columbus Streets In Silence

Columbus Catholics Renew Allegiance to Holy Name Society.

Columbus, O., Oct. 9.—Silently marching through the streets of the city, participating in the first open-air service ever held on the lawn of St. Joseph's cathedral, listening to an impressive and eloquent sermon by Rt. Rev. Bishop James J. Hartley and renewing the vow to abstain from vain use of the Holy Name, 5,000 Catholic laymen, members of the Holy Name societies of the various parishes of the city, took part in a demonstration that had for its motive the inculcation of deeper reverence for the deity in the minds of men.

GRANDMOTHERS USED SAGE TEA

To Darken the Hair and Restore Gray and Faded Hair to Its Natural Color.

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hairs before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair and are fast following suit.

The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready-to-use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. As a scalp tonic and color restorer this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers.

This remedy is sold under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

If your hair is losing color or coming out, start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur today, and see what a change it will make in a few days' time.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special agent, Brown's Drug Store.

Ohio Printers In Session

Columbus Entertains First Annual Ohio Cost Congress.

Columbus, O., Oct. 9.—Ohio printers today opened their first annual cost congress in this city, addresses of welcome being delivered by Governor Harmon and Mayor Marshall.

At the afternoon session addresses were made as follows: "The Birth of the Cost-Finding System," J. A. Morgan, chairman of the American cost commission; "The International Congress at Denver," W. J. Hartman, president of the Ben Franklin club of Chicago. This evening Alfred J. Ferris, secretary of the Graphic Arts M. F. Insurance company, will discuss "Trade Co-Operative Fire Insurance and Its Relation to Overhead," and Charles F. McElroy, secretary of the Ben Franklin club of Cleveland, will tell "What a Printers' Organization Can Accomplish."

The convention will close Wednesday afternoon.

When Her Saint Fell.

By A. Gladys Collins.

The waves, as far as eye could reach, broke in cold, white lines. The shore was a dull expanse of sand, and rocks climbing back and up to the leaden sky. No sound was there save the rolling of the waves on the beach. Suddenly a bird shot up from the jagged ridge, uttering a piercing note of warning, and swung with great, flapping wings out across the water. A few moments later a man and a girl were clambering down toward the sand. At the foot of the descent they stopped, breathless, and seated themselves on a flat-faced rock.

"And to-morrow at this time," the girl said, "you will be gone."

The man nodded dumbly. "Oh," the girl went on passionately, "if I could only go, too. But I mustn't think of that. It's a grand thing just to have a share in such a mission, to know that even while you're there doing that grand work sometimes you will think of me and this old, bleak shore. And I, of course, I shall think of you all the time." Her hands were clasped, her wide, bright eyes fixed unseeingly on the gray horizon.

The man drew her gently to him and kissed her upturned face. "Dear little girl," he murmured. "It is a great, great work, the greatest God ever gives, the chance to lay down one's life for one's fellows. But in the midst of it all I shall think of you often. When I am tired and disheartened I shall think of you, and in my happier moments I shall wish you knew."

Her star eyes, brightened. "You are almost a saint, dear," she said.

"Do you see that distinguished looking man over there near the woman in the terrible blue dress?" asked Miss Dorothy Trenton.

Her brother Bob nodded. "The one who was just talking to the captain."

"I want to know him."

"I'm not interested particularly," Bob replied.

The object of their conversation was a tall, broad-shouldered young man with a very brown face. There was something odd about him, the something which made Miss Trenton call him "distinguished." His eyes were those of a dreamer. If anyone spoke to him unexpectedly he started like a man suddenly awakened.

When Bob Trenton disappeared below, his sister shut her book and rose with a determined air. Book in hand she lurched down the deck with the cautious step of one who has not long left her stateroom. As she neared the young man the book slipped. Startled, he turned, the dream still in his eyes. The girl smiled gently and he stooped to pick up the scattered pages.

That evening, in what appeared the most natural way in the world, they were introduced, and from that moment their friendship grew. He talked, and rather well, on almost any subject, but of himself he seldom spoke. He had never been to America, no, he came from northern England. That much she found out within an hour, but further than that he was silent. The mystery about him gave him added value. Miss Dorothy smiled her sweetest, and before they sighted the Spanish coast, passengers left them markedly alone.

"I dreaded the voyage at first," she said, "and when I was sick I wished I hadn't started. But now I am not sorry," she slightly emphasized the "now."

"Yes," the man assented. "It has been pleasant, but it is almost over." He pointed toward the horizon.

"Why, there's that beautiful sail through the Mediterranean. I am looking forward to that so much."

The man cleared his throat. "I go by rail," he said.

"Oh," she cried, disappointedly. "I thought—"

"Yes, I know," he interrupted, "but I think perhaps it will be better so."

"Why?" she asked. "Why must you go?"

"Because," he answered, "I do not dare to stay."

The man turned to her with a sudden gesture. "I will tell you," he said, and there in the half-light he talked in low-strained tones until the moon had climbed high in the heavens. He told her of his life in his faraway, northern home, a bleak, sand-swept region with dull jagged rocks, and seabirds with strange piercing voices. He told her how a dream had come to him calling him to the East, calling him until everything seemed to have voice, the scrub pines, the rocks, the sand and, most terrible of all, those screeching birds. And in answer he was going now, in answer to his call. So he talked, but he did not mention that other girl with star eyes; everything else, but not her.

"And the call—what—what was it?"

"To the Hawaiians—to the ispers!" Suddenly the girl moved slightly and placed her hand on the man's arm. Her lips were trembling.

"Don't go," she murmured huskily. "I can't spare you."

Far away in northern England the moonlight flooded a long expanse of sand where rocks climb up and back and cast huge goblin shadows. Near the foot of the rise sat a girl, her hands clasped about her knees, her eyes gazing out across the cold, silver water. Quite suddenly she smiled, though the tears glistened on her cheeks.

"I wonder where he is to-night," she murmured softly.
